ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Upon receiving user information from a client system, a beacon server refers to a user database, acquires Web address information which is associated with the user information and is indicative of a most suitable Web page for a user, and transmits a URL beacon of the Web address information to the client system.